A Place to Call Home was created for the community of Prince Albert by the Prince Albert Literacy Network and under the project guidance of River Bank Development Corporation. The work was funded by a grant from the Government of Canada Homelessness Partnering Strategy, building on a previous foundational research project, Moving In.

Appreciation is given to the project developers, Sylvia Gent and Kim Orynik. They acknowledge the valuable contribution of the various housing authorities and organizations in Prince Albert, Community Service Agencies, and tenant focus groups.

Thank you to the Prince Albert Literacy Network for providing an internet home for this package on their webpage: www.princealbertliteracy.ca

A Place to Call Home

Tenancy Information Package

Introduction

Whether you are a first-time or long-term renter, a landlord or a community agency, this package is for you. Many people face challenges when it comes to basic housing. Tenants are looking for affordable, healthy, and safe living conditions.

How do I find a rental place? What are my rights and responsibilities as a renter? What are the rights and responsibilities of a landlord? What can I do when things go wrong? These questions and more are addressed.

This package has been designed in plain language, with support materials for use in a workshop setting. It provides practical scenarios and helpful tools, like checklists and sample documents. All are focussed on the needs of both tenants and landlords.

A Place to Call Home includes: a slide presentation, presenter notes, handout masters, and reference lists. The slide presentation can easily be viewed by an individual or for group use at the website: www.princealbertliteracy.ca Housing Authorities and community agencies may access an electronic version of this resource manual on the same Prince Albert Literacy Network webpage www.princealbertliteracy.ca

Train-the-trainer workshops for A Place to Call Home are being delivered during the release phase in 2013-14. To request a presentation, phone 1-306-922-6736.
